

MEMPHIS APPEAL

THURSDAY, AUGUST 19, 1880

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT.

W. S. HANCOCK, OF PENNSYLVANIA.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

HON. WM. H. ENGLISH, OF INDIANA.

FOR GOVERNOR.

JOHN V. WRIGHT, OF MAURY.

JUDGE WRIGHT'S PROGRESS.

Hon. John V. Wright, the Democratic nominee for governor, will address the people of Memphis tonight on the bluff, and will speak on the issues pertaining to the State and National affairs. Every man in Shelby county should inform himself on the State debt question, so that he can cast an intelligent vote on the day of election, and every man should therefore attend the meeting to-night without prejudice and with thoughtful consideration to the utterances of the Democratic nominee for governor. The storm is always followed by serenity, and after the recent bitter and exciting canvass in this county there is a comparative lull in politics. But in view of the importance of the issues in this canvass, involving as they do the reputation and future prosperity of the State of Tennessee, it will be as possible for good citizens to remain tranquil and indifferent as it would be for them to stand still amid the vibrations of an earthquake. In addition to the gravity of the issues to be discussed to-night, the speaker, Judge Wright, will be entertained by one of the ablest and most eloquent speakers of the State. Indeed, Judge John V. Wright has no superior in the South. He will make a brilliant canvass throughout the State. He is not one of the dangerous sort of candidates who cannot be trusted. He is a man of sound judgment, balanced, broad-minded statesman; known when to speak, when to remain silent, and can be trusted to say the right thing in the right way, with good taste and discretion. Wherever he speaks in this canvass, his winning manners will make new friends and confirm favorable impressions. Every arrangement should be made to try to make the meeting to-night a grand success. Since the day of his nomination Judge Wright has been on the move all the time, and his labors have been indefatigable. He was elected to Congress from the Memphis district, in this State, as soon as he was eligible to a seat, and made a reputation throughout the country by his meritorious work as a legislator, and we hope he will be equally as successful in crushing out a monster equally as hideous.

IMMIGRATION—BY THIS SIGN WE TRIUMPH.

From this time forward the shibboleth of the southern people should be immigration. The census returns are most encouraging. The South will soon be the cynosure for the European immigrant. The discrepancy as to the large increase of southern population between the last decade and that between 1860 and 1870 can be easily accounted for. From 1860 to 1870 many causes conspired to retard the growth of the South. We had a period of invasion for four years, which caused an exodus of thousands who sought safety in the Federal lines and never returned. Then we had the reconstruction policy, and were invaded by the carpetbaggers, whose rule, if possible, was even more onerous, for, as so unskilled our industries, increased our taxes, made property so unsafe, and so wrapped the future in the gloom of doubt and uncertainty that there was a new exodus to the Northern States. It is safe to say that twenty-five thousand people removed from the South to the North since the close of the dark days of reconstruction. There was no accession of new population while thousands left to free themselves of the rule of the usurpers and plunderers. The consequence was that the census of 1870 showed but little change in population since 1860. But with the beginning of 1870 a new era commenced dawning upon the Southern States. As our cotemporary of the Richmond (Va.) States says, "the bayonet was taken from our breast, and the culture's bark from our heart, and released from the terrors of war and the horrors of Radical misrule we started once more on a career of unimpeded prosperity. Population began to pour in from abroad, and young men instead of going west found employment at home." In other words, our Virginia cotemporary sustains the position of the Appeal in declaring that the policy of the Radicals made them "hostile to the community in which they lived," as our industries never thrived and we did not commence increasing in wealth and population until the taxpaying whites were enfranchised and the Radicals driven from power. The southern people are both surprised and rejoiced at the facts and figures revealed by the census returns. They show that we are on the broad-gauge road to prosperity, population, wealth, greatness. The continued slanders of the Republicans had been so often and so persistently repeated that we have a healthy community of vagabonds, that many southern people were really impressed with the belief that they were retreating and would soon become paupers in the poorhouses of the North. But the facts demonstrate that the South is more thrifty and prosperous than the North. We have achieved so much under such unfavorable circumstances, what may we not expect under brighter auspices. The election of Hancock will exterminate the Republican party and that will be an end to the falsehoods which induce emigration to the North. With the first extinction of the Republican party new parties will commence segregating, and in order to secure the support of the solid South there will be a rivalry as to which party has contributed the most to the prosperity of the South by inducing emigration. Now is the time to encourage immigration. Memphis has already made a move in that direction, and every town, village, city and neighborhood in the South should imitate the example. Even England, for the first time, is furnishing her quota of immigrants. The Washington Post says:

from immigration alone will reach the enormous aggregate of 300,000 during the present year. Supposing that only one-half of the German contingent expected are males liable to military service, there will still remain the loss of a very respectable corps d'armes to the German fatherland. One satisfactory feature of this European exodus, according to Superintendent Jackson's statement, is the large proportion of able-bodied, unincumbered single men comprised in the present movement toward our shores. The tide will not commence springing into the Southern States before next spring, and the emigration societies and organizations should hold on with the view of securing the immigration of next year—for, with the election and inauguration of Hancock as President of the United States, the people of Europe will hear no more about intimidation, bulldozing the kull-lawsiveness, and the murder of negroes, and will for the first time learn that the South is a peaceful, prosperous and blessed with an abundance of cheap, rich lands and a delightful climate.

The Fall Book Trade.—The preparations now making for the fall book trade anticipate a much larger demand than at any time within the past nine years. The results of the business in 1879 were very satisfactory, while during the past spring and summer the sales have exceeded all expectations. Southern and western retailers are now looking through the market, and seem to be very confident that their coming season will be fully one-quarter heavier than last autumn. There is a noticeable increase in the demand for good editions of standard authors, and the publishers of the South are confident that the country has been flooded with cheap and fifteen-cent issues, in addition to the numerous cheap editions of standard authors, and that the demand for the new and improved editions of the standard authors is increasing. The publishers of the South are confident that the country has been flooded with cheap and fifteen-cent issues, in addition to the numerous cheap editions of standard authors, and that the demand for the new and improved editions of the standard authors is increasing.

A SENSATION

In Washington there is more than a Nine Days' Wonder—An Old and Respected Citizen Marries a Noted Member of the Demi-Monde.

Biographical Sketches of the Parties—No Reason Assigned for the Extraordinary Procedure, whereof the Woman's Son was the Only Witness.

WASHINGTON, August 17.—The Post publishes the following account of a marriage that has created a sensation here: On Saturday last, a few minutes after eight o'clock, a carriage stopped in front of the Episcopal church, in this city. The occupants were an elderly gentleman, a lady and a young man, who carried his right arm in a sling. The party, accompanied by a clergyman, occupied by the Rev. Dr. C. C. Andrews and family, set back some distance in the park. The lady, handsomely dressed, was a brunette of attractive appearance, and the elderly gentleman was apparently about sixty-five years of age. They were introduced as Colonel Alexander D. Brown, of Brooklyn, Maryland, and Laura J. Bradley, of Baltimore, Maryland, at the time of the ceremony. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. C. C. Andrews, and the young man, who acted as the best man, was the son of the bridegroom. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. C. C. York, has recently communicated to the Chemical News an analysis of a sample of earth obtained from a bed several feet in thickness, in a cave called the "Cave of the Ancients." This earth is of a light gray color and very fine in structure; it is made up of very many small, rounded grains of quartz, and is very much like the earth of the Ancients. It is essentially a clay, similar to that used by the Japanese, but richer in silica; it contains a small amount of iron, and a very small amount of organic matter, which consisted of fragments of leaves, pebbles, and small stones, and perhaps insectal remains, mixed with the earth on that account. It is said that in some parts of Japan a red bole is made into a similar earth, and is used for the same purposes. It is also said that a similar diseased habit arising from the opposite view, to get fat, is not unknown. An accurate analysis of this dirt has not yet been made, but its permanent nutritive properties appear to be small.
